Anne Stenbom

Global Business Leaders

Anne is a global leadership and cross-cultural consultant. As a Director of Global Business Leaders, Anne works with people in international organisations to develop their ability to perform successfully across borders. This brings her to speak at conferences, facilitate events of all sizes, run workshops as well as coach executives and teams. She draws on extensive hands-on experience of leading and operating in multinationals across the globe. She is committed in all her work to promoting positive, open and respectful communication and believes that the key to successful leadership starts with gaining trust through credibility, empathy and a strong sense of inner purpose. Anne runs work in English (her mother tongue), German and Swedish. She also speaks French and Danish fluently.

Currently based in Stockholm and London, Anne has lived in the UK, France, Germany and Malaysia and worked in many more countries around the world. Her corporate career includes management positions in marketing, marketing communications, corporate communications and training. She has been an independent consultant and executive coach since 2002, working with a number of top training and consulting organisations and their global clients across a wide range of industries, including media, FMCG, banking, IT, telecoms, manufacturing and construction.
